

I want peace & quiet when I get home from a hard day at work, I do not want to receive unsolicited, annoying telemarketing calls, that's why I signed the Do Not Call list. Businesses have the option of returning to the way business was conducted before the advent of telemarketing, I believe it's called advertising. Note to Business: Solicit my business through creative advertising and I'll call you.

It seems that California is always leading the way for reform, maybe for once, California can step aside & let New Jersey lead the way. If the Federal Telephone Protection Act does not have the teeth that New Jersey's & other states' Consumer Protection Laws do, then rather than the Federal Government pulling the teeth of the states' laws, the Federal Government needs to get implants to make their law tougher.
